OPINIONS EXPRESSED WITH REFERENCE TO "CANADIAN WHO WAS WHO" A STANDARD DICTIONARY OF CANADIAN BIOGRAPHY

"Biographers and historians of tomorrow will have every reason to be grateful to those who have undertaken the laborious and often thankless task of collecting into permanent form the life stories of our citizens who have played an important part in the development of this country from the earliest times. Literary effort in Canada has been singularly lacking in collected biography that is accurate and unbiassed and every step taken to remedy this defect should receive substantial support and encouragement. The appearance of Volume II of "A Standard Dictionary of Canadian Biography" is, we believe, such a step.

There have been in the past various attempts to create some form of a dictionary of national biography in Canada but none has met with sufficient support to achieve anything like success. It is to be hoped that the present effort will have a better fortune than its predecessors. We need a dictionary of national biography very badly and it is a piece of work that should be undertaken seriously and consistently until a recognized and authoritative work is the result. . . .

The long list of writers who have supplied material for this volume is a good assurance that the work has been painstaking and thorough, and the excellent bibliographies are invaluable. Publication of additional volumes should not be delayed too long so that we may have at least, as the title indicates, a Standard Dictionary of Canadian Biography."—Winnipeg Free Press.

"The work is a worthy one and well done. It should find its place in the libraries of all genealogical and biographical libraries and libraries of general reference."—The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record.

"Immediately takes its place as a standard work of reference."—Mail & Empire, Toronto.

"It is the first volume of a series which will eventually cover the whole field of Canadian history. The editors commenced their work with the years 1875 to 1933 in order that the sketches might include first-hand contemporary information culled from families and friends, while it is still available. The biographies, therefore, are never mere chronological summaries, or compilations of well-known material. They are, rather, articles in which a definite attempt has been made to incorporate new material and personal impressions and recollections. In many cases the subjects of the sketches have been well known to the writers, e.g., the article on Principal Cordon of Queen's University by his daughter; on George Coodridge Roberts, the Anglican divine, by Theodore Coodridge Roberts, etc. Bibliographical notes are appended to each biography, and in the sketches a considerable amount of genealogical information has been included. It is difficult to pass judgment on the accuracy of such a book. The biographies which were checked, however, were found to be accurate. The names of the contributors are in many cases a guarantee of scholarship."—The Canadian Historical Review.

"For each subject a competent biographer has been selected and sketches are signed by the initials of contributors. In general the form of the articles and the bibliographies follow that of the "D.A.B." As a rule more genealogical material is included. The write-ups are well done and the editorial work has been thorough and judicious. This work should find its way into our libraries and many private hands."—New York History.

"The great Dictionary of National Biography of England now in more than eighty volumes has no counterpart in any other English speaking country yet every country should have such a work if a publisher can be found with sufficient courage to follow the example of the great English publishers, Smith, Elder & Co. In Canada we have had one or two attempts at a biographical dictionary but a comprehensive work is so costly as to be out of the question as yet. However, "The Canadian Who was Who", . . . is a courageous attempt to found such a national biography. The work has been well done with care by some seventy Canadian scholars under the general editorship of Dr. Charles C. D. Roberts and Arthur L. Tunnell, and is a credit to Canadian scholarship. All of our larger schools and public libraries should add this volume to their reference shelves."—Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation Bulletin.

"The work has been well done, and is a credit to all associated with the tremendous task . . . . One is stirred by the story of both races who dared greatly and gave of their best to build up this great Dominion. . . . Will be of utmost value as a volume of reference and should be on the shelves of every library. The publishers are to be congratulated on the excellent paper, the clear type, and the serviceable binding."—The Standard, Montreal.

"It is thoroughly representative in material and compilation; professors of colleges and universities from coast to coast, leading authors and scholars form its staff of contributors. The addition of such a master of literature as Sir Charles C. D. Roberts vouches for the quality of the whole."—Halifax Herald.
